

Dr Andy Xie

Independent Economist
Director of Rosetta Stone Advisor

Speaker & Advisor on China & Asia

A talented and analytical economist and an outspoken speaker on China

Professional experience

Andy Xie is a renowned independent economist, based in Shanghai and voted by Bloomberg in 2013 to be one of the top "50 most influential persons in global finance". He is highly respected for his analysis and views, and was one of the few economists who accurately predicted a series of economic bubbles, including the South East Asian Financial Crisis, the dotcom bubble and the US Subprime Financial Crisis.

He was the author of Double Dip: When the Bubble Bursts, I'll Tell You and is a regular columnist and contributor to South China Morning Post, New Century Weekly and Bloomberg. He is frequently interviewed by the Financial Times, Reuters and Bloomberg News.

He joined Morgan Stanley in 1997 and held the position of Managing Director and Head of Asia Pacific Economics until 2006 and held other banking roles prior to this including five years as an economist with the World Bank, which he joined through the Young Professionals Program. In this role, he took charge of the World Bank programs for Indonesia and other Asia-Pacific countries.

He was voted the number one economist in Asia between 2000 and 2006 by Institutional Investor Magazine and was selected by CCTV and the World Economic Forum as one of ten future economic leaders in China.

Books, Published papers, Media

Andy is a regular columnist and contributor to South China Morning Post, Cai Xin, New Century Weekly and Bloomberg.

He has published a large number of academic articles in different Chinese and foreign media, including "Uncertain World: Global Economic Vortex and the Future of China's Economy", "Xie Guozhong's Next China Economic Prophecy", and "Xie Guozhong's Advice".

He is the author of Finally, a Bubble (Chinese Edition) 2015, Xie 2014 economic predictions: manipulation of hot money in the end about to explode! (2013) and Double Dip: When the Bubble Bursts, I'll Tell You.

Sample assignments

Andy Xie is regularly invited as a keynote speaker or panelist to share his views with audiences on economic bubbles, China and Asian economies, global economics and finance, and his predictions for the future.

Sample presentation topics:

- China's Economic Growth: Economic downturn signals the end of the growth cycle. China requires painful reforms to deal with its legacy costs and restart a growth cycle.
- The World Economy and China: China's significance in the world economy.
- Asset Bubbles: financial predictions for Asia and the world.
- Impact of US-China trade on the Chinese market and on Global market.
- Emerging Economies – Growth and Financial Markets

He is frequently interviewed by the Financial Times, Reuters and Bloomberg News, CNBC and other media.

Andy Xie - Personal bio-data

- Andy is currently Director of Rosetta Stone Advisors, and Director of China Boqi Environmental Science and Technology.
- He was Managing Director and Head of Asia Pacific Economics at Morgan Stanley (1997-2006).
- Prior to this he was Associate Director, Corporate Finance, at Macquarie Bank (1994-1996)
- He spent five years with the World Bank working on in industry and finance programmes in Indonesia and on telecoms and power programmes in several other Asia-Pacific countries.
- He earned a PhD in Economics in 1990 and an M.S. in Civil Engineering from Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT)
- He is based in Shanghai and speaks fluent English and Mandarin.