

Maura Fogarty Journalist and ex-CNBC TV Presenter

Moderator and Chairperson

Professional Experience

- Maura Fogarty is a seasoned news presenter who has hosted a range of financial markets programmes. She was the co-anchor for CNBC Asia's "Cash Flow" and "Capital Connection," a show she pioneered serving as the financial bridge between Europe and Asia, as well as the anchor for "Asia Market Week".
- During her time at CNBC she covered the Asian Economic Crisis, the Dotcom Bubble Crash and the 9-11 attacks in the United States. She has reported widely from the 2006 Thailand Coup as well as from the Middle East during the 2003 Iraq War.
- Based in Singapore, Maura is an excellent moderator drawing upon more than 10 years experience in business and financial news both in front of and behind the camera and has worked in Asia, the U.S. and the Middle East.
- Maura has interviewed numerous top business leaders including George Soros, Michael Eisner, Michael Geoghegan, and S. Ramadorai and political leaders like Condoleeza Rice, Larry Summers, and Singapore Prime Minister Lee Hsien Loong.
- She has been various CNBC special assignments including her news coverage of the 16th Chinese Communist Party Congress, APEC Leaders' Summit and Finance Ministers Meeting 2000 & 2001.
- She was nominated in the Best News Anchor category at the 2009 Asian Television Awards.

Sample assignments

- Maura Fogarty has a very strong understanding of financial and investment topics but also has the skills, experience and personality to handle discussions across many economic, political, business and management topics.
- She conducts live-on-stage, in-conversation style interviews, moderate panels and compares events.

Maura Fogarty - personal information

- Currently a freelance broadcaster and international correspondent
- Formerly with CNBC since 1997 Maura has covered major global news events and hosted shows including "Cash Flow" and "Capital Connection".
- She had previously worked with Asia Business News and CNN before joining CNBC Asia in 1997.
- She speaks fluent Vietnamese.
- She has a Masters in International Affairs from Columbia University (1997) and a Bachelor of Arts from Willamette University (1993).